4. Venue	Koshiba-hall, University of Tokyo
5. Description of the results	The workshop "New Nuclear and Particle Physics to be Explored at the EIC" was held from May 28th to 30th, bringing together experts in the field. Participants discussed the latest developments and future prospects for research covering low-energy nuclear physics, hadron physics, and high-energy QCD physics at the Electron-Ion Collider (EIC). The workshop fostered collaboration between theorists and experimentalists from various projects, outlining strategies for Japan's contribution to the EIC project. We also addressed challenges in detector technology and data analysis, emphasizing the importance of nurturing young researchers for the success of this international project.
